Three Persons Bitten By Dog at Tinley Park; Given Pastuer Treatment

Tinley Park had a real mad dog scare Sunday night when three persons were attacked and bitten by a stray dog which was killed.

Rev. J. L. Chaney, pastor of the Tinley Park M. E. church, Miss Margaret Andrews and Mrs. Nelson were walking on the sidewalk near the manse of Hick & Mesenbrink when a stray dog came along and bit all three persons. The authorities were notified at once and a search was begun for the dog who was later found in the lumber yard and shot. The persons bitten were taken to the County Hospital and given the Pastuer treatment. As the head of the animal had been shattered by the shots fired at it, it was not possible to submit the head to the laboratory for analysis as to whether the animal was suffering from rabies, or not.

On Monday several other stray dogs were shot.

Watch all dogs and especially stray dogs and if they act strange, have them taken care of.

A movement is on now in Cook county to stamp out the rabies disease. Many dogs have been affected with this disease, the first signs of an epidemic having first manifested itself last fall.

Sportsman Inn Burglarized; $700 In Loot Taken

The Sportsman's Inn at Tinley Park conducted by Lorenz & Rein, was burglarized early Tuesday morning and about $700 worth of loot was hauled away in an automobile.

Entrance was gained by breaking a window. Among the loot taken was a sack containing 1000 pennies, cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, candy, etc. Several electric fans were torn off the walls and taken.

Mr. Lorenz sleep upstairs but did not hear any noise. Harry Brighton was the first person to discover the Inn had been robbed when he opened the place in the morning. This makes the fourth time this place has been burglarized since September.

Tinley Park to Organize a Lions Club

Another good sign of progress in Tinley Park is the news that the Tinley Park Real Estate and Improvement Association headed by Conrad Bettenhausen as president and Henry Bettenhausen as general manager, has bought 12 lots of Mrs. Mary Thies in Tinley Park and will erect a number of new homes thereon for sale later on. It is a good sign that Tinley Park is growing.

The business men of Tinley Park have signified their desire to organize a Lions Club by getting together recently and appointing Henry C. Vogt, of the Vogt Department Store as temporary chairman. A meeting will be held next Tuesday evening for the purpose of organizing a local Lions Club and applying for a charter. Fine movement! The Lions Club at Orland Park which also was organized by the business men of that town has proved quite a success.

Bremen G. O. P. Banquet Draws Record Crowd

BERT FULTON ENDORSED AS CANDIDATE FOR HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER

Approximately 300 men and women attended the Republican banquet held at the Saenger hall in Tinley Park Saturday evening.

Following a sumptuous dinner, the program opened with a short welcoming address by Rudolph Hug, President of the Bremen Republican Club. Mr. Ward of Midlothian responded to the address of welcome with a few well chosen words introduced Mr. Walter Beebe as the first speaker of the evening. He is attorney for the Illinois Valley Sanitary District and a past president of the Hamilton Republican Club. Mr. Beebe gave an eloquent talk that was keenly appreciated by the interested listeners. He spoke for clean politics, faithfulness to your party and government and for the cultivation of the highest ideals in politics.

Hinton G. Clabaugh, chairman of the Board of Pardons and Paroles for the State of Illinois, was then introduced. He gave a stirring address on crime conditions thruout the country and especially Illinois. He is recognized as an authority on the treatment and reformation of the unfortunate inmates of penal institutions. His ability to give statistics was marvelous. At the conclusion of Mr. Clabaugh's valuable talk, Mr. Hug introduced Mr. Bert Fulton, with the announcement that the Republican Club had endorsed Mr. Fulton for highway commissioner for Bremen township and that his name would appear on the Republican ticket of Board of Commissioners. He will receive their full support.

This announcement met with loud applause. Seated at the speakers table beside Messrs. Hug, Beebe, Clabaugh, and Ward were William Funk, mayor of Tinley Park, and John Andrews, the president of the Tinley Park Republican Club. Some of those at the Tinley Park table were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Funk, J. G. Poorman, Keuch, Fokett, Combs, Sr. and Jr., Mrs. R. Hug, Amelia Funk, Julia Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Keleher, Clemens, Moss and Mr. and Mrs. H. Vogt.

Informal dancing followed. It was midnight and then some, when this first annual affair of the "Good Old Party" broke up. The music for the evening was furnished by our own Tinley Park orchestra and a group of young men from Blue Island. It was excellent, full of life and melody.

Hall Stands on Record of Worthy Achievement

Don C. Hall of Mokena who is a candidate for nomination and election for Representative in the General Assembly from the 41st District, can stand upon a record of achievement which ought to gain for him the active support of all thinking voters in the District regardless of political persuasion and party application.

In the Wisconsin Legislature he was a harmonizing element which brought about a working force with a record of accomplishment. He introduced and had enacted into law the Co-operative Credit Association measure, the statute under which most of the co-operative organizations of Wisconsin are organized. During the consideration of this law, he called for the assistance of the most eminent labor leaders and bankers in the country, among whom was banker Woodruff of Joliet.

He introduced the Deleterious Substance Bill which started the agitation which has resulted in the elimination of water pollution in the state of Wisconsin.

He has enacted the resolution memorializing Congress to enact Flood Water Control Legislation.

He was active in securing good road measures and published the first road book for the state in the year of 1911.

He assisted in the defeat or repeal of many inoperative laws, and the consolidation of numerous commissions and boards.

He was a member at the Committee on taxation, and with Hon. Edward Nordman, now head of the Wisconsin Marketing Commission, he was enabled to bring about many reforms in the Taxation System. He assisted Dr. Charles McCarty of the Legislative Reference Library of Wisconsin, in writing the Federal and State Defence Councils measures, and was assistant in that department during Dr. McCarty's absence.

Ellis Baker Usher, Wisconsin Historian says of Don C. Hall, on page 2274, of his "History of Wisconsin".

"Mr. Hall has made the Theatre his profession for years. He took up the study of the drama and acting seriously with a passion for Shakespeare, and has gained most of his fame as an actor of Shakespearean Roles. He has the thorough respect of the people throughout the State, and has been active in Politics for several years, and as a member of the Legislature from Portage County he made a lasting record as a dynamic working force in that body". He is a Republican in Politics. There ought to be an appeal in this record, to the Thinking Voters of the 41st District. It is up to us to remember the name Don C. Hall.

Gas Might Have Proved Fatal

While Mrs. William Lowe of Mokena was preparing the evening meal for the family on Monday, she was overcome by gas fumes caused by a broken gas pipe near the Whitlark home. The gas followed the sewer pipe into the home. The little daughter of Mrs. Lowe called Miss Dorothy Miller, a neighbor, saying her mama was sick. When Miss Miller arrived she found Mrs. Lowe in a critical condition. She at once called for help and after working over Mrs. Lowe for sometime she was finally revived.

The political pot is boiling merrily and much interest is being taken in the coming primaries in April. Wm. Semmler, the editor of the News-Bulletin has also entered the political arena. A number of his friends recently approached him asking him to be a candidate for precinct committeeman on the Republican ticket. After fully considering the matter he entered the race. If nominated and elected he will serve his constituents to the very best of his ability and will also keep the voters informed as to the political activities in the county as well as locally thru the columns of the News-Bulletin. The voters should always be posted as what is going on in a political way.

Tinley Park Basket Ball Notes

A real basket ball treat is in store for Tinley Park basket ball fans on next Thursday evening, March 8th at the Saenger Hall. Members of the first basket ball team ever organized in Tinley Park, representing the old Dramatic Club of years ago, have challenged the present heavy weight team. The lineup will include Wm. Rick, Selby Hirsch, Wm. Firechau, Fred Goebel, Paul Rauhoff, Edward Firechau, Arthur Scheoneck and a few substitutes who may be needed before the game is over.

The lightweights will meet Frankfort in an attempt to break the tie that exists between these two teams. Tinley won the first encounter 10 to 9 but lost the second game 9 to 8.

An effort is being made to reorganize the girl's team of the past to play the local girls. These contests will draw a large attendance and a full evening of good entertainment is assured of. It is the talk of the town.

The General Assembly

The Legislative Voters' league has made its report on the 1927 session of the Illinois general assembly. The league judges, of course, from its own point of view, which may or may not be the point of view of some other qualified critic. We believe, however, that the league's report deserves the respectful consideration owed to an organization which has no selfish purpose to serve and which bases its statements on expert and attentive observation. The league's tests of fitness are its own, but many citizens will agree that they are well selected tests.

When the L. V. L. finds that it can praise only a handful of state senators and representatives, that it must describe the great majority as unfit in one way or another and that a dismaying number of legislators deserve not even condemnation, but only the adjective "colorless," its findings should cause the voters of Illinois some thoughtful consternation.

That the average member of the general assembly of one of the great states of the Union should be unfit for his job and the trust reposed in him is a fact to be deliberately contrasted with the high American ideal of a union of sovereign states.

State government suffers from the fact that it is an in-between institution. The voter knows his local officials because his local government so nearly concerns him. He knows the officers he helps send to Washington because he considers national offices so high that they should be efficiently and intelligently filled. But a seat in the assembly is neither close by, nor is it a considerable elevation, and the voter leaves it to the political machine to nominate and elect his state legislators. The system results in the use of the general assembly as a training school for bright young followers or as a dumping ground for political hangers-on who must be given some reward for services rendered. As a result, the general assembly is largely composed of men whose primary aim is to serve their particular organizations—not or are they entirely to be blamed for they owe their places to their organizations and not to the voter who forgot them.

This, then, is the general assembly which makes the laws affecting every citizen of the state, which makes nine-tenths of the laws under which the citizen's daily life is carried on, which alone can grant or without local self-rule, which levies all taxes collected within the state.

The state legislature is one of the most important, if not the most important, wheels in the machinery of government. Yet it is one of the most poorly served. That it is so is the voter's fault for failing to take an interest in the men he places in office in Springfield.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson,
Illinois Press Association

The voters of Illinois are promised a warm political fight when the showdown comes on April 10 in the primary.

The daily press insists that the following line-up will prevail among the Republicans: L. L. Emmerson for governor, John Oglesby or Fred E. Sterling for lieutenant governor, Otis F. Glenn for United States senator, Oscar E. Carlstrom for attorney general, William Stratton for secretary of state, Omer N. Custer for auditor constituting the so-called Lowden-Deneen-Emmerson-Carlstrom group; and for what is termed the Small-Thompson-Frank L. Smith ticket appear the names of Len Small for governor, Fred E. Sterling or John G. Oglesby for lieutenant governor, Frank L. Smith for United States senator, John Dailey for attorney general, and Robert E. Genzel for secretary of state, with no endorsements for treasurer or auditor.

The Democratic party has not encountered a great deal of opposition in its ranks up to the present time and unusual harmony appears to prevail. Floyd E. Thompson of Rock Island is slated for governor, Peter A. Waller for lieutenant governor, William D. Meyerling and Bert C. White for secretary of state, George W. Alschuler for state treasurer, Thomas J. Courtney for attorney general, George F. Schring and William O'Rourke for state auditor.

The field of candidates for congressman-at-large is a big one particularly for the Republicans. Eight Republicans have filed petitions as follows:

Richard Yates, Springfield; Henry R. Rathbone, Kenilworth; Ruth Hanna McCormick, Byron; W. H. H. Miller, Champaign; Charles R. Harris, Herrin; A. T. Spivey, East St. Louis; John T. Wood, East St. Louis; Walter H. Wood, Chicago.

Three Democrats are ambitious to be congressmen-at-large: C. D. Joplin, Murphysboro; C. F. Brown, Chicago, and William O'Rourke, Chicago.

One hundred and fifty men and women received their law diplomas from the state Supreme court a few days ago. After the class was presented to the court, the oath was administered by Chief Justice Heard and the address was made by an associate justice.

After the diplomas were presented by Clerk Charles W. Vail, a meeting was held at the Leland hotel in Springfield, where an address was delivered by Prof. A. H. Kent of the University of Chicago law school, and Paul M. Angle, secretary of the Lincoln Centennial association. His subject was "The Emancipator." President Ruch C. Edwards of the Chicago Bar association, and William Sexton, Chicago, spoke at a luncheon given by the State Bar association.

Construction of the Chinkapin hard road probably will become a part of the state's construction program of 1928, and a public hearing will be held with regard to its location within a short time.

This important and encouraging bit of information was given to a Springfield delegation which conferred a few days ago with Governor Small, Col. C. R. Miller, director of the state department of public works and buildings and Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer. The stretch is a continuation of Walnut street, Springfield, north to Cantrall, where it connects with the Peoria hard road, and is nine miles in length. It cuts off approximately four and a half miles of the Peoria hard road and is designed to relieve traffic congestion from the Chicago and Peoria hard roads through Springfield.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has given an opinion in which he holds that the county clerk of Morgan county is not bound to extend municipal taxes of real estate on certain real estate at Waverly in 1900. The land was excluded from the city of Waverly under an act of the legislature in 1879; repealed in 1901.

Following a conference a few days ago with a delegation of boosters for the construction of a hard road from Arlington to McLean, Governor Small directed that a survey be made at once. The section is a part of the proposed highway leading from Havana to Champaign.

The issuance of 2,000,000 50-cent pieces in commemoration of former Speaker Joe Cannon was proposed in a bill several days ago in the house of representatives of the United States by Representative Holaday, Republican, Illinois. The coins would be issued to the executive committee of the Uncle Joe Cannon Memorial association, Danville, Ill.

The minting of ten million Lindbergh medals, to be sold for a fund to buy the early home of Charles A. Lindbergh at Little Falls, Minn., and to erect a museum at St. Louis, Mo., for souvenirs of his air travels, would be provided under a bill introduced in the U. S. house of representatives by Representative Kvale, Minnesota. Issuance by the postmaster general of a set of 13 Lindbergh stamps commemorating the achievements of the flyer would be authorized by a bill introduced by Representative Ackerman, Republican, New Jersey.

Death cut a wide swath in the ranks of Illinois state officials recently when four men closed their careers. Lee O'Neil Browne, picturesque politician and veteran Illinois legislator, was drowned in the Fox river at Ottawa when he accidentally fell from a 30-foot retaining wall along his estate into the rapid current and his body was swept downstream for a quarter of a mile. Less than 15 minutes after the accident the body was recovered and for more than two hours physicians, firemen and first-aid squads labored in a desperate effort to save him. Mr. Browne had served continuously in the Illinois assembly since 1900, and from the beginning was in the midst of nearly every battle waged on the legislature floor. In 1924 Browne was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, but was defeated. He was a native of Illinois, born in Earlville in 1896 and graduated from Illinois State Normal university at Normal and Illinois Wesleyan university at Bloomington, where he received his law degree. More than 4,000 people, including members of the Illinois house and senate, attended the funeral at Ottawa.

Frank H. Tuttle, chief clerk of the division of purchases and supplies of the state department of public works and buildings, died at his home in Springfield a few days ago after a week's illness. Mr. Tuttle was appointed to office by former Gov. Charles S. Deneen and organized the division of purchases and supplies. He had been a resident of Springfield for the past 20 years.

Dennis J. Egan, affectionately known as "Dinny" to neighbors of the Twentieth ward of Chicago, and for many years a powerful figure in Cook county Democratic politics, is dead. Mr. Egan had been nominated as a delegate to the Houston convention this year. He also served three terms in the state legislature.

Charles W. Morgan, building inspector of the state department of public welfare, died in Wilmington recently. Mr. Morgan went to Wilmington several weeks ago on an inspection trip. He became ill while at the Soldiers' Widows' home and what was termed intestinal influenza developed into pneumonia which resulted in his death. Mr. Morgan had been employed as building inspector by the state for the past several years.

While the reports from 1,480 of the leading employers in Illinois indicate a decline of 2.1 per cent in employment during January, favorable information regarding orders attest that industry will probably follow its usual course during February and that conditions will improve.

This is the conclusion reached in the review of the Illinois department of labor for January, just issued by Director George B. Arnold.

The January employment decline, he says, is not indicative of a further decline in business activity. A drop for the first month of the year is usually looked for and regarded as normal.

Prospects are good in the metal and woodworking industries, with additional workers employed. Automobile establishments also reported a gain of 2.6 per cent in employment during the month. In the coal mining industry of the state a gain of 5.7 per cent in the number employed is reported. There are approximately 61,000 miners working in the state at present.

Bonding power of municipalities of the downstate section is 2 1/2 per cent on the value of taxable property.

The bill, passed by the house of representatives and signed by Governor Small becomes effective July 1. The new law, which was supported by the Illinois Agricultural association was necessary to meet a decision of the State Supreme court which, in effect, would have placed the entire downstate on a bonding power basis with Chicago, which is 5 per cent.

The Illinois Municipal league which favored a higher bonding power will urge an amendment at the next session of the legislature on the ground that they need more money with which to continue public improvements. The measure, although quite important to all municipalities, is very brief.

William P. Brooks, Auburn, credited with establishing the first rural free delivery route in Illinois 34 years ago, has just celebrated his ninety-ninth birthday anniversary. Mr. Brooks has been a resident of Auburn for more than 70 years. He served as postmaster under the administration of Grover Cleveland, and during his term as postmaster he established the first rural free delivery service.

One hundred and eighty-two mines in Illinois produced 5,906,201 tons of coal in January, according to a report just issued by A. D. Lewis, director of the state department of mines and minerals, as compared with a production of 8,391,428 tons in January, 1927. Franklin county produced the largest amount of coal, having 1,465,185 tons to her credit.

A health report issued recently by Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state director of health, shows 177 cases of diphtheria, 316 cases of scarlet fever and 375 cases of pneumonia under quarantine in the state. The detailed report is as follows:

Diphtheria 177, including—Cook county 158, Chicago 134, Bureau county 13, Knox county 6, LaSalle county 20, McLean county 12, Sangamon county 25, Vermilion county 6, Winnebago county 23.

Epidemic meningitis—Cook county 6, LaSalle county 1.

NOVELTY TWEED NOW IN LEAD; GILDING THE QUILTED ROBE

ALL signs point to an exceedingly "tweedy" season for topcoats. The woman who does not sport either a tweed coat or a tweed ensemble will surely be the exception. In the matter of cloaking tweed, emphasizes an infinite variety of manish mixtures whose colorings and patternings fascinate in their novelty and bold motifs.

The model in the picture is such as moves in the very vanguard of the spring style parade. Its striking all-over patterning is done in white and gray, the latter shaded from dark to light. These ombre colorings which tone in a crescendo from pale to deep are prominent in materials of every sort, at present. The collar of silver fox tones in perfectly with the general color scheme of the coat.

Versatility is the word for fashionable tweeds. Not a dull moment do they register in point either of color, design, weight or weave.

If you happen to be wanting a zephyr-weight tweed for a frock you will find scores of them "as light as a feather" awaiting your choice, and in a bewildering array of stunning patternings. To be really chic, they should be made up with the selvedge left for the edge finishings instead of hems, bindings or facings.

The colorings of these lightweight tweeds must be seen to be appreciated. They are adorable and are the rage.

If fancy turns to somewhat heavier tweeds, why not try one of the loose weaves, which are the big thought at this moment for ensemble of skirt and no peer, with all admiration for the exquisite estheticism of trailing lace-laden and beribboned negligees, all must agree, that from the standpoint of solid comfort, there is no garment comparable to the quilted robe of downy silken softness.

Just at this season of the year when spring gives promise while winter continues to "stand by," the chill of morning and evening is forgotten by fortunates enwrapped in robes similar to the model portrayed in the illustration. The charming styling given to this "comfy" lounging robe is another "reason why" its presence is warranted within every perfectly appointed wardrobe of boudoir apparel. There is that about this robe which contradicts any suggestion of clumsiness, a feature which is characteristic of all modern quiltings. Like everything else in the mode, this charming three-quarter length coat? Yours is the privilege of choosing between a twist version woven in intermingled colors without defining any patterning or a weave which suggests a subtle design employing two tones in its construction. In making up the garment the "classy" thing to do is to fray the edges into a self-fringe instead of hemming or otherwise finishing.

Of all the alluring themes which have to do with "what to wear" perhaps none is of more fascinating appeal to most women than that which concerns dainty boudoir apparel. The more tailored milady appears in the daytime hours the more completely does she react to the luxury of prettily feminine attire within the environs of home.

With due appreciation of the fascinations of the ultra-fashionable pajama costume when it comes to gorgeousness and exotic display has robe reflects the influence of this age of glittering metallics in which we now live, in that it is collared and cuffed with a broad gold embroidered galloon trimming. This is a decidedly new detailing for the up-to-date quilted robe, which gives it the prestige of the ultra-chic.

Quilted bed-jackets, too, are meeting with flattering reception, for they fill a long-felt want. They are as daintily constructed as one can imagine, and come in exquisite pastel colorings.

The flair for things quilted is not confined to houseroles, it appears, for nowadays the boudoir boasts a whole list of furnishings which are hand quilted, especially sets of nightgown and handkerchief cases matched to a downy scallop-edged coverlet. As to quilted pillows, they repose in every available niche of the home.

HERE ARE SOME DESSERTS

A simple dessert easy to prepare and wholesome for children and grownups, is always a welcome addition to any menu.

Date Jelly—Add two egg whites, beaten stiff, to a mild lemon jelly, adding one cupful of dates cut into pieces; beat until stiff, pour into molds and serve with a boiled custard.

Apple Souffle.—Make a sauce of two tablespoonsful of butter, three of flour, one-half cupful of milk and one cupful of baked apple or sifted apple sauce. Remove from the fire, add three beaten yolks, pinch of salt, sweeten to taste, add a little lemon juice, and the stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into pastry-lined gem pans and bake twenty minutes. Serve with whipped cream garnished with cherries.

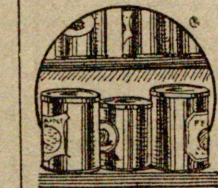

Coconut Snowballs.—Mix beaten yolks with two tablespoonsful of water, one tablespoonful of orange juice and one teaspoonful of lemon juice. Beat well and add two-thirds of a cupful of flour sifted three times with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Pour into small molds and steam one-half hour. Turn out on a plate of coconut and powdered sugar. Roll with two forks until well covered. Serve with fruit juice lightly thickened for sauce.

Pineapple Toast.—Boil for five minutes the liquor from a can of pineapple with one teaspoonful each of orange and lemon juice; thicken with a teaspoonful of cornstarch and pour over well-buttered triangles of toast. Serve garnished with pieces of pineapple, hot or cold.

When it seems impossible to think of anything easy for dessert, try canned apricots, pears or peaches. Serve in sherbet glasses with a dab of whipped cream, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a sprinkling of nuts. With a small cake or a cookie this makes a nice dessert.

Emergency Lunches.

The housewife who keeps a few cans of soup, string beans, peas and spinach on her emergency shelf may have a very wholesome luncheon in a short time. A good combination from a dietetic standpoint is the following:

Lamb in Ramekins.—Mix one-half cupful of condensed milk with one-fourth cupful of water, add two cupfuls of minced lamb, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, two tablespoonfuls of green pepper chopped and one tablespoonful of chopped onion. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs sprinkled over the ramekins after they are filled with the meat mixture. Bake in a moderate oven over 350 degrees for about twenty minutes or until well browned.

Sweet Croquettes.—Mix together one cupful of cake crumbs, one-fourth cupful of blanched almonds or grated coconut, the grated rind of half a lemon, and one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice; add one-half cupful of orange juice and let stand for ten minutes. Heat to the boiling point; remove, add one egg yolk lightly beaten and cool. Shape as croquettes, dip into egg white diluted with one tablespoonful of water and roll in dry bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat and serve sprinkled with powdered sugar and chocolate sauce.

Chicken Tetrazzini.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of shredded chicken, three-fourths of a cupful of shredded ham, three-fourths of a cupful of spaghetti cooked. Simmer one small green pepper slowly with two chopped mushrooms and three tablespoonfuls of butter for three minutes, then add the spaghetti, one-half of a red pepper finely minced, two cupfuls of cream and one teaspoonful of salt; cook four minutes. Mix the yolks of three eggs with two tablespoonfuls of cream and stir into the mixture. Serve the yolks of three eggs with two tablespoonfuls of cream and stir into the mixture. Serve at once.

Apple Souffle.—Take one pint of steamed apples, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one-half cupful of sugar, the whites of six eggs, the yolks of three, a slight grating of nutmeg. Stir the butter, sugar and egg yolks well beaten into the hot apples. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff and fold into the mixture. Butter a baking dish and turn in the souffle. Bake thirty minutes in a hot oven. Serve at once with any desired sauce.

Quart of Water Cleans Kidneys

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.

When love sets the tasks the laborer never thinks of demanding shorter hours.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

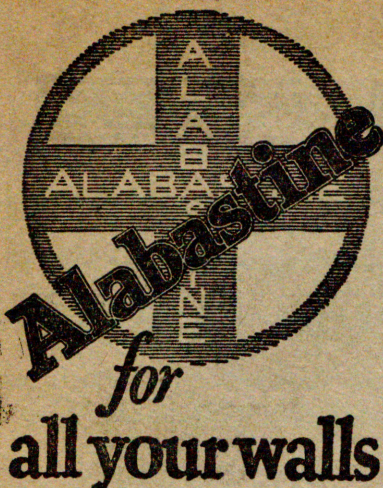

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

Lesson for March 4

JESUS AND THE TWELVE

LESSON TOPIC—Mark 3:13-19; 6:7-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel unto every creature.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Chooses Twelve Helpers.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Twelve Apostles and Their Work.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Call to Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Training of the Twelve.

1. The Twelve Ordained (Mark 3:13-19).

Jesus, knowing that His earthly career would be cut short, made provision for the carrying forward of His work after He was gone by calling and ordaining the twelve. Before doing this He spent a whole night in prayer (Luke 6:12). The burden of His prayer is indicated by what He immediately did. From among His disciples He chose twelve, whom He ordained for a twofold purpose.

1. "That they might be with Him" (v. 14).

Fellowship with the Lord is not only the highest privilege of a disciple but the indispensable qualification for witnessing for Him. Personal association with Jesus Christ—the interaction of personalities—the impact of His personality upon ours is the essential preparation for Christian service.

2. "That He might send them forth to preach" (vv. 14, 15).

To proclaim the good news of salvation to the lost world was the supreme mission of the disciples. Their credential for this mission was the endowment of the power of the Spirit—"To heal sickness and to cast out devils" (v. 15). Concerning those who were to be Christ's messengers observe:

(1) That twelve were ordained (v. 14). This was the beginning of the process by which the triune God was to make known His grace to the whole world, therefore He sends forth the number of men corresponding to that purpose. The number twelve is the product of the heavenly three and the earthly four indicating the purpose of the triune God to reveal Himself to the four quarters of the world.

(2) Their characteristics. (a) Men of average ability. They were not from schools and colleges, yet men of mental capacity and efficiency. This has been the history of the Christian church. Not many noble, not many wise after the flesh are called (I Cor. 1:26). (b) Middle ranks of society. They were not chosen from among the rich, neither from among paupers. The most efficient workers are those who are able to sympathize with the common people. (c) Diverse temperamental gifts. They were so grouped as to have impulse and leadership—reflection and questioning went together, and among them were found men of practical business ability.

11. The Twelve Sent Forth (Mark 6:7-13).

1. They were sent forth in pairs (v. 7).

Two reasons may be assigned for this. (1) A cheering and comforting companionship for the workers.

(2) Confirmation of testimony. In the mouth of two or three witnesses every word shall be established. People would more likely believe that which was verified by two.

2. Supernatural authentication of their mission (v. 7). He gave them power over unclean spirits. He endowed them with power to work miracles, in order to demonstrate their divine commission.

3. Their maintenance (vv. 8, 9).

They were to depend wholly for their support upon the Lord who sent them. Having received the message and the power gratuitously they were to give them out in the same way (Matt. 10:9).

4. Contentment with hospitality (v. 10).

According to Matt. 10:11, inquiry was to be made upon entering a city as to a reputable place to stay. Upon being directed to such a place the missionary was to be content.

5. The responsibilities of the hearers (v. 11).

Judgment was to be pronounced upon those who rejected their message.

6. Their message and work (vv. 12, 13).

They went out and preached that men should repent. Matthew adds, "The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand" (Matt. 10:7). This means that the kingdom promised to Israel was at hand, that the Messiah was present and ready to set up His kingdom. In confirmation of this message they cast out many devils, anointed with oil many that were sick, and healed them.

IT'S NEW—It's Different, and It's Loads of Fun

HOW FAR CAN YOU FLY?

That's the big question. Lindbergh flew 3600 miles. Chamberlin flew 3800 miles. How far can YOU fly? All you have to do to win is to send in the coupon below, giving your proper name and address so that we can send you our official airplane, called the Treasure Hunter, (about four times as large as the picture above, and without any 8's written on the wings), and then see how many times you can write the figure 8 on the wing of the airplane that we send you. Isn't that easy enough for anyone? You can write as small as you want and make as many 8's as you want and then add them up and the sum total of all the 8's you have written will represent the mileage of your non-stop flight. For example: ten 8's will be eighty miles, one hundred will be eight hundred miles, etc. The one who has the greatest number of miles will be the first prize winner. In case of a tie, the full prize value will be awarded to each contestant so tied. This is going to be a short, snappy contest, no long waiting, nothing else to do, no list of words to write, nothing else to do except see how many times you can write 8 on the official airplane that we will send you FREE.

This contest closes May 1st, 1928. Don't delay—Quick action means $1,000.00 for you.

Rand helped with the Christmas party plans. On little white cards, gay with candles and holly, they printed the invitation.

Auntalmir's Christmas Party at the Lone Pine
Christmas Eve
Five O'clock.

Just one week before Christmas, the Budlong boys waded through the snow all over the Evergreen end of the island, and delivered the invitations, one to every house. It could not have been more than ten minutes after she received the announcement that Alice Andover was to be seen sailing grandly up the hill, a sort of full-rigged majesty in her advance. Gay met her beneath the pine.

"Now don't blame me. I hadn't a thing in the world to do with it. I only lent her the cottage as she asked. She did everything herself. She sold everything she owns to pay for it, and it isn't going to cost you a cent. She has gone without jelly, gone without butter, gone without cake, gone without sugar—it's her party, and none of our business, if you ask me."

Alice Andover sank weakly into a chair. "I might have known it. That's the thanks I get. That's how folks take to good, honest, conscientious administration. And then the audacity to invite me to the party."

"Oh, please come! She'll be so disappointed if you don't come. She wants you to see how cleverly she has managed."

"Oh, I'll come. And since she's got the unmitigated audacity to have a Christmas party in spite of my orders, I'll send my presents as usual. Oh, I always give little things—people here for years—all in the family, you know, and I being the administrator. So you can tell the foolish old woman I'll send my presents as usual. I've never missed one of Auntalmir's parties yet, not since that first devil-cursed one fifty years ago when—"

"Oh, don't. She—she thinks maybe he is the Unknown Soldier at Washington; she—"

Alice Andover stared. She opened her mouth, closed it with great firmness and blinked hard at times.

"Unknown Soldier!—Good heavens. What next?" Then she added humorously, with a bright glint in her gray eyes, "Well, whatever he is, thank God, it is unknown. That's all I've got to say for Buddy Bridges—Unknown Soldier."

The next day Rand climbed the tall pine and strung it with Christmas lights from topmost point to lowest branches, round and round, a hundred little colored bulbs, and connected them to a switch beside the window where Auntalmir could turn it on before the party. Auntalmir was enchanted with the idea of wiring the tall pine; she had not dreamed of such royal welcome to her Christmas guests. For days before the party she talked of little else.

It was only three days before Christmas, the twenty-second of December, in the thick darkness of the early evening, that Ronald Ingram came again.

He entered hurriedly, his manner for the first time showing something troubled, something furtive. He glanced over his shoulder nervously, and closed the door behind him swiftly.

"I shouldn't have come," he began hurriedly. "But I had to. I came to Portland to close up some contracts, and I simply stole the time and made the trip over on the afternoon boat to see you. I must catch the first boat back. Short—but I had to see you. Gay, I have thought of you constantly. Your face has swum before my eyes, your voice rung in my ears, the light little touch of your fingers—" He shook his head impatiently.

"Mr. Ingram," she said with pretty dignity, "please don't do that. I assure you I do not like it."

"Oh, you think I am chaffing. But I mean it. I—Miss Delane, tell me. If I should sell out—all my interests—my business connections—would you—marry me? Would you even think of it? I know it is too soon for you to know— But would you let me come where you are, let me see you, try to make you love me— Is there any chance for me at all? I would have some money. I could take care of you. We could go any place—West, or to Europe, anywhere."

There was no doubting the sincerity of his words, the eagerness of his desire.

"Don't," Gay said gently. "You will spoil our pleasant friendship, and I have liked it. It is because you have been away, you have been lonely, perhaps worried. It isn't really I you want. Why, you don't even know me. It is just—woman, companionship, sympathy, soft things. That is all."

But he shook his head, clung to her hands. "Gay, it is you. Nothing else. Nobody else. You. From the moment I saw you down in the cove— Oh, I know you don't love me now—but couldn't you? If I get things all straightened out, and—do something else— Gay, isn't there a chance?"

From somewhere down the lane sounded the low siren of a car.

Ronald listened a moment, but still clung to her hand. "Gay, don't say no. Don't say anything. Just wait, think of me a little, and as soon as I can—I will come again. But try to think of me—if not with love—at least with a little tenderness."

Quickly he lifted her hands, palms upward, kissed them passionately, one after the other, crushed them to his face and went away.

Gay sank into the big chair and buried her face in her arms. A criminal! That artless, boyish, ingenuous man, with the pleading voice and the eager eyes? But even a criminal deserves some kindness of thought from the woman to whom he gives his love. Gay was very kind.

The next day, very early, Rand appeared at her door, dressed roughly for outdoor winter weather, in heavy oilskin coat and breeches. He was hurried in manner, preoccupied. He told Gay he was obliged to run down to Boston for a few days on business.

"Now you sit tight while I'm gone," he cautioned her. "I'm on the trail, and I'm going through with it. I've told the folks I'm looking for a job, and they won't expect me home until they see me. You just wait here. Say nothing to anyone. Do nothing. Don't set your foot in those woods under any circumstances. And at night, Gay, please, to please me, go down and stay with Auntalmir. And don't worry, for I shan't be in any danger."

"You are not going to Boston," she said bitterly. "You are going into those woods, to lie under the piazza and watch the clubhouse, and try to catch those murderers. They'll catch you, first. Rand, don't, please don't. What business is it of ours if they break the law? What are their affairs to us? Why should you risk your life—"

"Oh, there's no danger, Gay, not a bit of it. I'll be careful, I promise you. Just a little weather eye out for squalls. No, I am going to Boston. I have gone to Boston. Get that in your mind, and stick to it. I shan't be able to write you, and I may not be home for several days. Just wait for me, and don't worry."

But Gay did worry, worried heart-breakingly. But she would not go to Auntalmir. Rand might come, and she wished to be there, waiting for him where he left her. He might need her—a shot in the night, a scream of terror—Gay set her small sleek head determinedly. Nothing, nothing in the world should keep her from going to him in answer if he called for help.

She was glad for the excitement of the Christmas preparations to occupy her hands, if not her thoughts, through the dreary days that intervened.

It never occurred to her that he would not be back by the twenty-fourth of December for the party on Christmas eve. But the morning passed, and he did not come. Gay had no heart for the laughter, the young excitement of the island lovers, the flushed joyousness of Auntalmir. Rand did not come. It would be Christmas eve, her Christmas eve, and Rand did not come.

At three o'clock Gay took Auntalmir by the hand and led her down to the Apple Tree, where she put her bodily to bed, tucking the blankets about her and begging her to take a sadly needed rest.

So it could have been but very little after three when she softly closed the door of the Apple Tree behind her and set her feet in the path through the snow to the top of the hill. And glancing up, ahead of her in the path, saw a man walking toward the cottage. Gay almost called out to him, expecting Rand, because she wanted Rand. But before sound left her lips she silenced the call, for she saw that it was a stranger, one who seemed to make his way unsteadily in the face of the brisk wind from the sea, staggering a little.

When he reached the piazza of the Lone Pine, he did not wait to knock, but opened the door slowly and went in, closing it after him. Gay was but a little way behind, and she ran in breathlessly, but stopped short in surprise when she did not find him in the living room nor the kitchen.

"Hello," she called. "Hello! Anybody up there?" But received no answer.

Frightened by the unnatural silence, and mindful of Rand's words of warning, she went to the desk, slipped her pistol deftly into the pocket of her heavy coat, and then she climbed the stairs, watchful and alert.

And there indeed she found him, lying face downward on the soft rug of her bedroom floor.

"What are you doing?" she demanded foolishly. "What do you want?"

He neither moved nor answered. So Gay went to him timidly and bent over him that she might see his face. His eyes were closed, his lips hard set. She tried to raise him, but his head fell limply from her hands.

She shrank away from him, shuddering with fear.

CHAPTER XI

The crisp voice of Alice Andover had never sounded so sweet to Gay's ears as at that moment.

"Gay Delane! Where are you? I saw you take that foolish creature home, so I came to see if I could—What is the matter?"

Gay beckoned to her sternly from the top of the stairs. "Come up," she said, and her voice was hollow. "Come up."

Alice Andover was never one to hesitate in a crisis. She came at once, breathing hard. Gay pointed dramatically to the bedroom.

Alice Andover gave one wide-eyed glance and saw the prostrate form.

"Good heavens, oh, good heavens! Where did he come from—where did you get him—I mean—"

"He came up the hill just ahead of me. Walked right in. Came upstairs, and evidently fell down there. Or lay down. There he is."

Alice Andover crossed the room and stood above him, touching the inert body tentatively with the toe of her shoe.

"Drunk," she said disgustedly. "Dead drunk."

Gay breathed more freely, in some relief. "Oh, is that it? I—was afraid of—oh, terrible things!"

At that moment, spasmodically he moved, and his face rolled back into the light.

"Oh, oh!" Alice Andover's explanation was a startled gasp. "Oh, my God, I believe— Oh, poor Almire. I believe it is Buddy Bridges. Come home to his poor trusting mother—dead drunk. Oh, it is all my fault. Oh, what in the world have I done? Buddy Bridges—poor Almire. All my fault."

"Buddy Bridges? Oh, really? Oh, Auntalmir—how happy—" Then came sickening realization of the pain it would be to the little old woman to have him come home to her like this, dead drunk. Better a thousand times for her to live on in her trusting ignorance, fondly believing him an unknown hero, pure and fine. "Oh, poor Auntalmir! See here, Mrs. Andover, this drunken creature shall not spoil the poor dear's Christmas party. The way she has slaved, and saved, and starved herself— He shan't! Let her have one happy night—it may be her last, since Buddy came home like this. He shan't spoil it. Not if I have to poison him."

Alice Andover, trained to efficiency by years of hard administrating, suddenly became practical and decided. Being in charge of things always aroused her latent cleverness.

Flint Axes of Stone Age Found in Sweden

The 4,500-year-old-stock-in-trade of a Stone age peddler in flint axes has been found by some workmen in a gravel pit in the Swedish province of Gothenland. The peddler's board consisted of a number of light-gray flint axes of exquisite shape and workmanship, evidently hidden in the ground by the trader, who seems to have wandered a long way from the south of Sweden to barter his axes for the precious furs of the hunters of the Soendermanland forests. The poor peddler seems to have met his death, for he never returned for his axes that now are said to be the best find of its kind ever made in that part of Sweden.

Sentence That "Stumps"

The spelling of this sentence is said to trip up many of the best stenographers: "It is agreeable to view the unparalleled embarrassment of an harassed saddler or peddler serenely sitting upon a cemetery wall gauging the symmetry of a perfectly peeled potato."—From the Outlook.

"We'll just roll him over in the corner out of the way," she said briskly, and cover him up with the rug, and let him sleep it off. We'll lock the door, and keep him here till it is over."

"Will he stay drunk all night?" Gay asked. "Shouldn't we give him something—"

"Whisky! I wish we had some whisky. If we had time—maybe we could keep him drunk for a week. I don't know just how long it does last, but I know the party lasts all night. He may sleep it off."

"I have a little cognac. Brought it in myself—from Paris—in the toe of my dancing slipper. Real stuff," Gay said proudly. "I was keeping it for a wedding, but he can have that."

"Good! We'll give him a big—swig-of it." She brought out the nautical term with a nautical swagger, both doubtless inherited from the long line of seafaring ancestors. "We'll keep him as-tight as a lard—until the party's over."

Carefully but sternly they rolled him over half out of sight beneath the window-seat, and covered him.

So Gay brought the precious smuggled bottle of cognac, never yet unsealed, and they gave him a generous swallow, forcing the bottle between his teeth not without much difficulty. He choked over it and coughed painfully, while the conspirators held their breath in a panic above him. But presently he relapsed into troubled breathing again.

"That'll hold him for a while," said Alice Andover grimly.

They locked the door upon him and went downstairs. But when Alice Andover moved as if to go to her own home, Gay refused to be left alone in the house with the drunken creature upstairs, and Alice Andover was obliged to remain, fixing herself up for the party as well as she could with Gay's face powder and electric curlers. They had tea to strengthen their shattered nerves, and at five o'clock tiptoed up to the bedroom to give him another potent draught of the cognac. He swallowed this time with less difficulty, and as he drank, to their horror, his eyes opened, eyes large and dark, Gay noticed even in that horrible moment, eyes now visionless, not seeing. When the muffled heavy breathing recommenced, they tiptoed from the room.

Alice Andover, because the opening of his eyes had frightened her, was freshly furious. She shook her fist at the door when it was safely locked behind her.

Good Health Not Won Without Self-Denial

Dr. W. H. Pound, superintendent of the department of health, said at a dinner in New York:

"John D. Rockefeller at forty-five was a dyspeptic wreck, and today he is the healthiest man for his age in the world."

"How did he bring about the miraculous change? The same as he brought about Standard Oil—by endless perseverance, by the exercise of an iron will, by terrific self-denial."

"Most dyspeptics, you know, are like Dash."

"Dash, the multimillionaire, was about to order supper at a night club. With his eyes fixed on the menu, he sighed, and said:

"When I was young I could eat anything and afford nothing. Now I can afford anything and eat nothing. Heighho! Bring me, waiter, a grilled lobster, a welsh rabbit, bottle of champagne and half a hot cherry pie."

"These are hard times. Why, I heard of a man the other day who couldn't raise money even on government bonds."

"Indeed! What was the reason?"

"He didn't have the bonds."—Montreal Star.

ORLAND

The Lions Club party at the St. Michael's church last Thursday night was a great success. The members and their wives attended. There was special entertainment and Mr. J. Klein furnished the smokes and Mr. Wm. Beagley, the ice cream as a treat to the crowd.

Rev. Sanders addressed the civics class of the Orland Park High school on the subject. "The Church and the Community". The class has been studying the community and its various institutions making a careful analysis of each. Rev. Sanders brought out the fact in his talk that the church should not exist in the community as an end in itself but rather as a means of serving the community life. When it failed to do this it was time to close its doors. The Christian church must serve all people regardless of faith or creed. It must be an aid to young people as well as old, in their working out a practical plan of life which will bring success and happiness to all.

He advised the young people to think thru their problems and not accept an idea just because someone said it was true, they should prove it for themselves. They should find truth in all things and then follow that truth regardless of where it lead them.

The Ladies Guild held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Sanders. There was a very good crowd out and all seemed to enjoy the meeting.

Miss Arbuckle superintendent of Lake Bluff Orphanage where the Christmas gifts were sent to the children from this community spoke on the needs of that institution. She also told of many of the children who were helped at Christmas time by the gifts from Orland Park and also Worth.

The long promised boy scout night will be Sunday evening, March 4th at the Orland Park M. E. church. At that time the Boy Scout Executive will be out from the city also the Boy Scouts from Palos Park and Worth and some of the other surrounding towns.

IN MEMORIAM

FERDINAND STRASSENBURG—

A tribute of sincere love and cherished memories to our dear husband and father, who passed away one year ago today, March 2, 1927.

He had a nature we couldn't help loving. A heart that was purer than gold. And to those who knew him and loved him

His memory will never grow cold. He never failed to do his best. His heart was true and tender; He worked hard for those he left;

That's something to remember. The sweetest memories are all we have left of you dearest father gone to rest.

Shaft Would Have Value

It is strange that an expedition into the earth's interior has never been seriously attempted. If we could sink a shaft only twelve miles into the ground we might strike all the coal and oil that would be needed in millions of years. In all likelihood we should find radium, gold, silver, diamonds, and other gems of untold wealth, as well as wonderful new metals and fresh sources of energy.—Exchange.

Sahara Once Fertile?

Arabian tradition is that water was still abundant when the Arabs first entered the Sahara in the Seventh century, and that the drying-up process was not completed until the Thirteenth century.
